

This article is available online at:

<http://www.cybernetman.com//kb/index.cfm/fuseaction/home.viewArticles/articleId/13>

Does the i-One have an on-screen keyboard?

Cause - Touch Screen typing

The i-One series of PCs do not come with an on-screen keyboard; one must purchase and/or download a software program for this functionality. If ordering Windows XP pre-installed, Microsoft's built-in on-screen keyboard is available in the Start Menu (Programs > Accessories > Accessibility); this can only be used once logged in. A 3rd party software program would be required in order to provide an on-screen keyboard at the Windows XP login screen; a popular recommendation for one can be found here. With Windows Vista and 7, the Ease of Access button on the welcome screen can be used to open an on-screen keyboard.